Railroad Disaster.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 18.—A freight train on the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Indianapolis Railroad this morning went down into a creek seven miles from this city, dangerously injuring the conductor, engineer, fireman and a brakeman. It is believed that Charles Holland, the engineer, will die. The engine and eighteen cars went through the bridge, the timbers of which are said to be rotten, and in order to clear the road it was necessary to burn the entire wreck. The loss will be heavy.

War in the East.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Thirty thousand soldiers were engaged in today's fighting at Shvinitza.

SOFIA, Nov. 18.—A telegram states that Bulgarian troops have recaptured Presnuk and dispersed the Servians. No fears are entertained at present for the safety of Sofia.

The Daily Telegraph says: It is almost certain that Greece will go to war. A captain of the Greek navy has started for London to purchase men-of-war.

An Aged Farmer and His Two Sons Killed by a Train.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Nov. 18.—A terrible tragedy was enacted in Edgefield county to-day. A white man named Robert Jones occupied some land rented by his connections, Charles and Edward Pressly. They notified him that they could no longer pay the rent and that he must vacate to-day. Jones went to a field where Edward Pressly, aged 80 years, and his sons Charles and Edward, were plowing and shot Charles dead. Edward started in pursuit, and Jones stabbed him mortally with a knife. Jones now reloaded his gun and killed the father, who is the grandfather of Jones's wife. Jones then came to the court house, entered the jail and surrendered, remarking that he had killed three of the best men in the country. This account is from the News and Courier correspondent, who visited the scene. Another account is that the Presslys went to the field where Jones was working, and Jones killed them in self-defense.

RHODE ISLAND.

Mr. William N. York, mail contractor and driver on the route between Westerly and Voluntown, was badly bruised near one of the post offices on the line Monday evening. His horse was frightened into a run, he was dragged some distance, and not until a bank wall presented itself, to have struck which would have been sure death, did he let go his hold.

Mr. Milo M. Clarke of Westerly, met with a painful accident on Monday evening. He was riding on a load of hay which was to be unloaded into the loft of his barn on Main street. There was barely room for the high, bulky load to pass under the door cap, but on went the horse until it brought up. Mr. Clarke was wedged between the hay and the door cap so hard that he was unable to speak, his breath being knocked out of him. Mr. Clarke was in great pain and was assisted to his home, whither Dr. Lewis was summoned. He was badly pinched and bruised, although it is thought not seriously.

The people of Westerly are agitating the question of building a lockup. The officers here in case of arrest have to leave their heads and go to Tower Hill, a distance of some three or four miles, for a warrant, thence to Kingston to the jail. If a bailwreck was provided it would save a long drive, "especially in the winter," and these law-breakers could be provided for until a warrant could be obtained, and their wants looked after in a proper manner. The building recently occupied by Sheldon & Wright near the Wakefield station, has been suggested as an admirable location for the lockup.

The growth of the Knights of Labor in the Old Colony district is phenomenal. Lodges are about to be formed in Haverhill, Hingham and Pembroke. Twenty-five years ago, says the Executive (N. H.) To-day he is acknowledged to be one of the foremost railroad managers in the country, the best paid, and the head of the greatest railroad system in New England.

What Kind of a Windmill to Buy

—AND—

Where to Buy It

GEORGE A. WEAVER

Will tell you to Buy a

PERKINS MILL,

because he believes it to be the best. After an experience of ten years with many different makes he finds this to have more good points at less cost than any other. It will wear longer, stand the hardest storms, will not scare the most nervous horse, does not cast a shadow that can be noticed, is perfectly noiseless, has but two joints to adjust in a storm, no counter balance piston bearings or adjusting fans.

Call and examine the model and see that what I claim are points of value. One doesn't buy a Windmill every day, and should be sure to get the best. Prices given on Towers erected with Mill, Pump, Tank and all complete anywhere in New England.

THE PLACE

to get a first class photograph finished in the most satisfactory manner is at

Farm and Family

Poultry for Farmers.

The average farmer cannot expect to secure the extravagant profits which are sometimes mentioned in connection with poultry keeping, but yet every suitably located farm of twenty to fifty acres can carry from 100 to 2000 laying fowls, at a net profit of $2 per hen, only raising enough chickens every year to keep the number of fowls full.

The first necessity on such a farm will be a suitable building. Still there are many farmers who could fit up sheds or a dry barn cellar, which would answer the purpose for a limited number of fowls. For those who have no such building at their command, the erection of a plain, practical building, to accommodate 100 hens, is an easy matter with any farmer who is handy with tools.

The building should have a shed roof eighty feet long by twelve feet wide, facing south. If it stands on a southeastern slope all the better. For a foundation use chestnut or cedar posts seven inches in diameter, set three feet in the ground, and sawed off six inches above the ground. Set the posts ten feet apart, north and south, and the ends of the building. Upon these posts spike the sills of two by six spruce, and over each post set studs of two by four spruce, seven feet long in front and four feet long in the rear. In the centre of each ten-foot section in front set two window studs of the same size, eight inches apart.

Two by four studs spike the plates of two by four spruce. Plank the frame and board back, front and ends perpendicularly with dry, matched pine or spruce boards. Upon the plates place the rafters of two by six spruce, two feet apart. Board the roof lengthwise of building with square-edged hemlock lumber, eight inch windows in front about 24 by five feet.

The roof and back of this building may be covered with heavy tarred paper, secured by lath nails ten inches apart. Cover tarred paper with two coats of coal tar and it will prove water tight and durable. A ventilator six inches in diameter over every second window will give sufficient ventilation during the very coldest weather. The front and ends should be battened over the cracks and then painted or whitewashed.

The inside of the building should be partitioned each twenty feet, forming apartments twelve by twelve feet. Board the partitions two feet high at the bottom to keep the male birds from fighting through the slats or netting which may form the rest of the partition, excepting the three-foot door in front part of building, passing from one apartment to the next.

In the rear of the building inside, and twenty inches from the ground, make a platform two feet wide running entire length of the building. Eight inches above and over the centre of this platform place the roosts of two by three spruce, with top corners rounded.

Under the platform place the nest box, made as follows: Use a board fourteen inches wide for the bottom. Upon the edges of this board nail other boards six inches wide, which will form back and front of nest box, including a hinged bottom board. Next put in partitions twelve inches apart, eighteen inches high, making the nests twelve by four inches. Nail a five-inch board to the top of partition in front, and to this board hinge the door, eight inches wide, and through which the eggs may be taken from the nests in front, the hens to enter in the rear.

Such a nest is appreciated by the fowls, as they may be secluded from the other while laying. It is also easily cleaned and whitewashed. Each nest box should contain twelve nests, or it may be made in two sections of six each, to secure lightness in moving. The necessary expense for lumber, nails, and everything else, for building a building in average localities, will not exceed $70, and you will have a much more practical poultry house for business than an expensive one with fancy trimmings and lattice work inside, all of which serve as a harbor for lice.

Cover the ground inside four to six inches deep with coarse, sharp sand, which will make a dry, suitable floor, and one that will be enjoyed by the fowls during cold weather. Throw enough coal or whitewash will complete the building. The house should be near or in the orchard, that the fowls may have sufficient shade in summer. If a farmer wishes to enclose them at special times during the year, while he is planting the garden or seeding some plot in the yard, there should be yards in front of each apartment for this purpose.—(A. C. Hawkins, in American Cultivator.)

Ridding Birds and Hens of Lice.

I have successfully practised the following method of ridding canary birds of lice: Take a small elder sprout to make the perch; punch out the pith with a wire or stick, placing a plug in each end of the perch. Next heat the end of a wire red hot and burn through six or eight holes to the centre of the perch. In using this perch, take it out once every two or three days, removing both plugs. Set one end of the perch in a teacup, pour boiling water in at the top end, and the number of lice thus secured will be a surprise. Continue this practice as long as any lice can be caught.

It is not necessary to use the elder sprouts, as any tender sprouts of other woods will answer the purpose equally well, if constructed in the same way. The theory and the supporting evidence is that the lice bite the bird until satisfied, then crawl in through the holes to the dark chamber and remain there several days. There is no patent on this suggestion, but it may be more valuable to lovers of canary birds than many of those inventions taken to Washington.

The same method may easily be applied to hen roosts or those of other fowls. Take the long, straight, smooth end of any tree, split them through the centre with a saw, then make grooves in the middle of each half, finally nailing them together and putting in two plugs at the ends, with the holes into the centre. Place them so they can be lifted up at one end, take out the plug and pour in the boiling water, and the lice will be caught and killed.

I am acquainted with an individual who related to me the following: "I had a horse I could do nothing with. I did not dare to go into the stall beside him. He seemed to be crazy, and I finally swapped him off to a jockey, who examined him and found his neck alive with lice. When the lice were cleaned off the horse was all right."

Again, I know a farmer who keeps some thirty or forty hens not half covered with feathers at any time. "They do not lay eggs enough to pay their keeping. Good enough for this careless farmer. His hens are connected with lice, and his barn is infested with them. He uses no means to clean them out of the barn or off from his hens, and he reaps the reward in light returns from his fowls.—(L. L. Pierce, in American Cultivator.)

Fruit Notes.

It is a good plan to wrap a piece of tarred paper around the bodies of trees during the winter to keep rabbits away. Place a teaspoonful of salt close around each raspberry plant now. Scatter manure and salt freely on the asparagus beds in the fall.

Grapes hung up in a dark place so that the bunches do not come in contact will keep for weeks, when they are piled on a dish or in a basket they will soon decay.

If you have an old grape vine that yields poorly and has seen its best days, cut it entirely off close to the ground, manure heavily and let it throw up two new leaders, and the following year you will see that it is as good as a young vine.

In sections where the winters are not severe for blackberries, many might enjoy this fruit during this season by having them growing in half-barrels and sinking them in the earth during the early spring and removing to the cellar during the winter. The same, too, is true of tender raspberries and other fruits.

It is useless to expect a crop of red raspberries where suckers are allowed to grow freely, and cultivation is not given. Planted five feet each way in straight rows both ways, and cultivated with a sharp-tooth implement that will keep all suckers off between the hills, and only three or four canes allowed to grow in the hill, with the bushes well mulched, a paying crop may be expected each year.

The only remedy for rust on blackberries is to dig and burn all effected plants at once, and to renew the same from some young plantations not effected.

One of the best methods for growing fruit in a hotbed, or greenhouse, is to put in a layer of moss and over this an inch or so of rich mould and sand mixed, and as the roots strike this moss, it causes them to strike out through it in every direction, thus making fibrous-rooted plants, every one of which will grow when transplanted.—(Fruit Recorder.)

Agricultural Notes and Hints.

It will often pay to take a plow and team and open the drains along the road through your land. This will give the water from the fall rains free passage to run off and thus prevent it parking into the ground and causing land weeds, as soon as freezing and thawing commences.

Most nuts will not sprout after they have become thoroughly dry, and should therefore be planted as soon as ripe. If the ground is in proper condition the best plan is to plant the nuts just where the trees are wanted. A mellow moderately rich soil, covering the nuts two or three inches deep, and packing the earth firmly over them, is all that is needed.

As London veterinary surgeon affirms that he has nursed the leg of a Jersey cow, and substituted a wooden one, which the animal wore for three years, rearing man while three valuable calves.

Shoulders are the cause of many horses becoming balky. A horse should not be compelled to work when his shoulders are injured.

A farmer may prepare a field of winter grain ever so carefully and yet have all his labor come to naught if he has not provided against the freezing out of his grain by defective drainage.

Look ahead and prepare work for a rainy day. The grain in store may be ruined in such weather; barns and cellars can be renovated and put in order; wagons may be oiled and washed, tools repaired, etc.

The Winter Window Garden.

These words are not intended for the benefit of those who have conservatories and bay windows, but for those who have to make the very best arrangement possible with limited rooms and ordinary windows. I will describe my large box, which for four winters has been found to be the most convenient method of any for growing plants with little care. It is made of zinc, is three feet long, fourteen inches broad and seven inches in depth. It is framed at the top with wood to give it strength. This can be made of black walnut or stained in imitation. Of course the box may be painted any color you choose. First, put in something for drainage, and then fill the box with rich, mellow soil and one-third sand.

In this box you can set fifty plants of medium size. In the centre have a row of the largest. I arrange to have five in the middle and one in each corner, then fill up with those of smaller size. None should exceed ten inches in height when put in the box. Its attractions chiefly depend on handsome foliage plants—coleuses, begonias, variegated plants, abutilons, bright acanthuses, white-edged and tri-colored geraniums, acalapha mucaenifera, cranthemum, plectranthus and sometimes a croton.

The above are very ornamental without flowers, but the begonias and abutilons are very reliable for blossoms. There are no plants so satisfactory for our hot, dry rooms as those last named. The variegated abutilons I have not found so free blossoming as the others, but their maple leaf foliage, marbled with white and yellow and green, is so ornamental that one can well dispense with the blossoms.

The dark abutilons have a tendency to grow tall, and should be cut back when ten or twelve inches high, as to force them to branch, and when the branches are five or six inches in length they should be cut back, and thus other shoots will put forth so as to form a bushy top. For the dwarf, free-flowering abutilon we can recommend Danvillei. This is admirable for the box. It begins to bloom when a tiny plant. Its flowers are more spreading than other varieties, umbrella-like, color, orange veined with pink, blooms in clusters. Firefly is a grand bloomer; color, bright red. Little Beauty is of bushy growth; flowers, salmon veined with rose carmine. La comode is pure white. Seraph is also white, but instead of being bell-shaped its flowers are long and of tubular form. These last are new.—(Cor. Philadelphia Press.)

Recipes for the Table.

FILETS OF HALIBUT A LA POULETTE.—It requires three pounds of halibut, half a cupful of butter, two large onions, the juice of a lemon, three hard boiled eggs, and small quantities of flour, salt and pepper. After freeing the fish of skin and bones, cut it into slices about half an inch thick, and cut these into strips about three inches long and one wide. Sprinkle with lemon juice, salt and pepper, and lay a thin slice of onion upon each strip. Cover the fish with a large dish and put away for half an hour. At the end of that time melt the butter in a soup plate, and after removing the onion from the fish, dip the strips into the butter. Roll them up, and strip them into the water, then pick them up and place them in the butter once more, and after placing them in a tin pan, dredge thickly with flour. Bake for twenty minutes in a hot oven. Meanwhile cut the whites of the eggs into rings and grate the yolks through a sieve. When the fish is cooked, spread the rolls upon a hot dish, remove the little skewers, and pour white sauce into the dish. Sprinkle the grated yolks over the fish, and use the whites for a garnish.

A MUSTARD SPONGE.—In referring to a sponge as a carrier of poisons, Dr. H. H. Ayer considers that it makes the hair of mustards. Mix the mustard in a basin with water until the mass is smooth and of even consistency. Then take the soft mass all up with a clean sponge, lay the sponge in the centre of a white handkerchief, tie up the corners neatly, and apply the smooth, convex surface to the skin. This mustard sponge, warmed again by the fire, and slightly moistened, can be applied three or four times, is good for several hours, and saves the trouble of making a new poultice during the weariness of night watching. The sponge can afterwards easily be washed clean in warm water.

DIST FOR STUDENTS.—A generous and hearty diet is indispensable for people who work with their brains; as Mr. Lowell says, "Nerve tissue is expensive." Many a delicate girl or pale student breaks down more from lack of food than from any other cause. Any study is overstudied for one who is underfed. Plenty of nourishing food should be provided, and not only this, but it should be of a kind that will be relished. Brain workers, whether old or young, cannot thrive upon a diet of pork and potatoes. It is not yet understood well enough by all those who have the charge of the table and its supplies that what fuel is to the fire food is to the body.

SCALDED CAULIFLOWER.—Boil until tender, then cut into neat clusters and place in a buttered pudding dish with the stalks removed. Make a paste with a cupful of bread crumbs, 2 tablespoonfuls of melted butter and six tablespoonfuls of cream; add salt and pepper and one egg well beaten. Place this over the cauliflower or broccoli, cover the dish closely and bake in a quick oven six minutes; remove the cover and brown in five minutes. Serve very hot in the dish in which it is baked.

CHOCOLATE SAUCE.—Chocolate Sauce to be eaten with cottage pudding or with cream, is a delicious sauce. Boil half a pint of cream and half a pint of milk. Grate two tablespoonfuls of chocolate into this. Let it come to the boiling point, then add the well beaten yolks of two eggs, or if generously disposed, of three. When the sauce is of the right consistency, take it from the fire and add to it the whites of two eggs, which you have beaten to a stiff froth, with a tablespoonful of powdered sugar. Flavor with vanilla.

CUSTARD AND APPLE SAUCE.—One pint of the pulp of roasted apples strained, one-half pint of pulverized sugar, the whites of three eggs. Beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, then add a spoonful of sugar and a spoonful of apple alternately, beating all together until the mixture stands perfectly stiff on the spoon. It will swell very much. Make a buttered custard of the yolks of three eggs, one pint of milk and two tablespoonfuls of sugar, and flavor with vanilla. Place the custard in saucers, cover with the apple sauce and serve.

LEMON CREAM PIE.—The juice and grated rind of one lemon, one cup of white sugar, the yolks of two eggs, three tablespoonfuls of sifted flour and rich milk enough to fill your plate or pan. This makes a large pie, and should be made with an under crust only. Bake until nearly done, then take it from the oven and spread over it the beaten whites of two eggs, with two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar. Set back in the oven until brown. Eat cool, or quite cold.

QUINCE MARMALADE.—Boil the quinces until they are soft, then peel them and rub them through a sieve or grater. To each pint of pulp add one pint of sugar and boil for two hours, stirring frequently. When there is no danger of burning, but where the boiling is continuous. The long boiling causes the color to become a rich red. An inferior marmalade may be made by leaving the skins and cores and pressing through a sieve, proceeding as above.

COHN BISCUITS.—Scald two cups of corn meal in one pint of sweet milk. Then add together two cups of sugar and a cup of butter, two cups of sugar and a little salt, and add to it. Then add three eggs well beaten, a little flour, and half a cup of oil. Let it rise the second time; then roll out, and let rise the third time. Bake and send to the table hot. This amount makes twenty-five biscuits.

MOLASSES COOKIES.—Two cups molasses, two teaspoonfuls saleratus dissolved in a little water, one cup of shortening (lard), butter or beef fat, one teaspoonful of ginger, one of salt (less salt if butter is used), one-half cup of water. Cut the lard into a cup of flour, add the spice and salt, and mix with the molasses. Then put in the water and add flour enough to roll out. Cut with a biscuit cutter and bake in a quick oven.

Fashion's Fancies.

The prevailing tone of the hour is Eastern. Face of all ages is revived and will be fashionable.

New colors are arriving daily and exhausting the names.

Carved wooden heads of every size are used for trimming everything.

Tight-fitting Norfolk jackets of homespun are worn with any costume.

Tucked and shirred bonnets are as popular as they were thirty years ago. Woollen lace is being shown in new and very beautiful designs, and is meeting with much favor.

The latest freak of fashion in note paper is fiery red, fine and hand-made, with envelopes to match.

The French colors were never more brilliant. Red and yellow in endless variety of shades are popular.

Jersey jackets have plush vests, the favorite combination is seal brown with vests of golden plush.

The new woollen scarfs imported as military gauds are very handsome, and elaborated will find other uses.

The shades of brown, especially seal and suede, make very stylish worsted toiles when simply trimmed with a little moiré or velvet.

The bracelet with the spring is no longer used. Those of flexible gold links and fastened with old-fashioned clasps are the correct thing.

YOUR HAIR

should be your crowning glory. Ayer's Hair Vigor will restore the vitality and color of youth to hair that has become thin and faded; and, where the glands are not decayed or absorbed, will cause a new growth on bald heads.

MAY the youthful color and vigor of the hair be preserved to old age? Read the following, from Mrs. G. Norton, Somerville, Mass.: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the past 30 years; and, although I am upwards of 60, my hair is as abundant and glossy to-day as when I was 25."

BE assured, that a trial of Ayer's Hair Vigor will convince you of its powers. Mrs. M. E. Goff, Leadville, Col., writes: "Two years ago, my hair having almost entirely fallen out, I commenced the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. To-day my hair is 29 inches long, fine, strong, and healthy."

RENEWED and strengthened by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, the hair regains its youthful color and vitality. Rev. H. Williamson, Davidson College, Mecklenburg Co., N. C., writes: "I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for the last ten years. It is an excellent preservative."

BY the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor, Geo. A. Dabman, Waterloo, Mo., had his hair restored to its original healthy condition. He was nearly bald, and very gray. He writes: "Only four bottles of the Vigor were required to restore my hair to its youthful color and quantity."

USING Ayer's Hair Vigor cures all cases of the scalp. F. H. Foster, Princeton, Ind., writes: "I had been troubled for years with a disease of the scalp; my head was covered with dandruff, and the hair dry and harsh. Ayer's Hair Vigor gave me immediate relief, cleansed the scalp, and rendered the hair soft and pliable."

Medicine.

Happiness

results from that true contentment which indicates perfect health of body and mind.
You may possess it, if you will purify and invigorate your blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. E. M. Howard, Newport, R. I., writes: "I suffered for years with Scrofulous humors. After using two bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, I

Found

great relief. It has entirely restored me to health." James French, Atchison, Kan., writes: "To all persons suffering from Liver Complaint, I would strongly recommend Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was afflicted with a disease of the liver for nearly two years, when a friend advised me to take this medicine. It gave prompt relief, and has cured me." Mrs. H. M. Kiddle, 41 Dwight St., Boston, Mass., writes: "For several years I have used Ayer's Sarsaparilla in my family. I never feel safe, even

At Home

without it. As a liver medicine and general purifier of the blood, it has no
equal." Mrs. A. B. Allen, Waterpock, Vt., writes: "My youngest child, two years of age, was taken with Bowel Complaint, which we could not cure. We tried many remedies, but he continued to grow worse, and finally became so reduced in flesh that we could only move him upon a pillow. It was suggested by one of the doctors that Scrofula might be the cause of the trouble. We procured a bottle of

AYER'S

Sarsaparilla

and commenced giving it to him. It surely worked wonders, for, in a short time, he was completely cured."

Sold by all Druggists.

Prudence Crandall's Colored School

BY LEONARD T. WILLCOX.

We have a strong desire to wipe off again the dark which has gathered upon the memory of a young woman who some years ago avowed a moral heroism in the retirement of her own home, such as has seldom illumined
the history of the world.In the autumn of 1832, Miss Prudence Crandall, a young Quaker lady of exemplary piety and superior education,
having been very successful in the town
of Plainfield, Connecticut, as a teacher, was induced by the citizens of the neighboring town of Canterbury to purchase a large and commodious house and open a day and boarding school for the education of young ladies. Near the village at this time there lived a colored farmer named Harris in comfortable circumstances, whose daughter Sarah at the age of seventeen had attracted attention by her literary attainments and blameless character. She was a member of the church, and as a preparation for the pious service of instructing the less favored young ladies of her own color she was anxious to avail herself of the superior advantages of Miss Crandall's school, and she so applied for admission, her father agreeing to pay the entire expenses.The young teacher, though entirely free from color prejudice, and feeling the deepest interest in Sarah Harris, whom she personally well knew and highly respected, quailed at first before the threatened blast of indignation and for a short time hesitated. There was her school in which her soul was bound up, already a success, its permanence was secure and she herself was beloved by all, and yet almost entirely alone in sympathy for the young girl who stood before her pleading and entreating to be made a pupil of the school. The young students, to their credit, be it said, had no objections. The teacher, however, quickly yielded to the dictates of humanity and Sarah was admitted as a student.Now, had Miss Crandall publicly announced that her school was to be taught in a country school, the culture of poisonous weeds, the breeding of venomous reptiles or the distribution of infected clothing, she could not have fanned the indignation of the citizens into such a roaring blaze or have turned the entire town, metaphorically speaking, more completely upside down.
She entreated, explained and expostulated—but to no purpose; the place was untenable, and she was compelled to the immediate evacuation of the "nigger" girl (her color was just turned from white)
from school could appease the wrath of the good people of Canterbury.How far Miss Crandall bent beneath the storm is evinced by an
